ALASKA PROJECT IS ATTRACTING MANY

Applications Being Received Daily From the States.

Basin, Wyo.—Colonists on the wide publicized Matanuska project in Alaska now are for the most part well satisfied with their lot, despite rumors to the contrary. Don Irwin, agricultural director, wrote A. W. Koons of Basin, a friend.

Despite wide publicity given some complaints, there are many now in the United States who are eager to take their place in the former residents of Basin and at one time a member of the Wyoming legislature, revealed that he was willing to take the place of colonists leaving the project.

"Despite the stories being circulated to the effect that the ground it would appear that things have gone very well," Irwin wrote. "True, we could have made better progress had the actual construction work been started earlier in the season, as it might well have been. Since it has started, however, it is going forward with a rush."

At the time of writing, Irwin said, 200 men from transient camps in the United States, 200 carpenters and laborers from the towns along the Alaska railroad and 125 colonists were hurrying to complete the houses and get people and live stock under cover before winter set in.

"To date we have other completed houses under construction 107 houses, with 61 yet to build," Irwin said. "I think it safe to say that 25 per cent of the remaining houses will be under construction in the next two days."

"The colonists are working hard, are considerate and expect to stay and make this their home. They are well clothed, well fed, are being supplied with nice homes, furniture, good stoves, sewing machines, power washers and good radios. It isn't pleasant to think of it."

"To date 25 families have left the colony. Five more are making application to return. Richman will develop and it may be necessary for some who would like to make Alaska their home to return to the States."

Lady's Painful Trouble

Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hixburg, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would take me down. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-nothing'. My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pain disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." — If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.
